Winds Of Vengeance (Crimson Worlds Refugees Book 4)

Synopsis

Earth Two. A new home for the survivors of the fleet, the men and women who battled against seemingly insurmountable odds to survive the assault of the First Imperium and to destroy the homicidal Regent, the artificial intelligence committed to their destruction. They have prospered in the years since their arrival, adapting the technology of the First Imperium to build a new and prosperous republic. But as the fear of the First Imperium recedes, cracks have begun to appear, conflicts looming that threaten to destroy all they have worked to achieve. There are rivalries between the clones known as "Tanks" and the "NBs," naturally-born humans, disputes driven by envy, resentment. And on the fringe of the new society, the enhanced genetic hybrids known as "Mules" are feared by both groups, though they continue to decipher First Imperium technology for the benefit of all. But there is a far greater threat lurking in deep space, for the Regent was one of two, and its copy activated automatically upon its destruction. It has been planning, exploring, building vast fleets of new warships, and now it is ready to strike at a divided republic, to accomplish what the Regent failed to do. It is ruthlessly single-minded, existing for a single purpose. And that purpose is vengeance.

The survivors of the battles with the Regent super computer that was built by the First Imperium are trying to build a new life on Earth 2. They struggle with only a small group of people and one of the most important issues is to build a larger population that is sustainable. They have to prepare defenses and make new space craft and develop new technologies and weapons. Thirty years later they are split into 4 groups and strife is showing. They have the original survivors, the new born generation, the clones called tanks and the enhanced hybrids that are called mules. As the politics and problems fester among the population of Earth 2 they face an even more threatening and dangerous problem that is unknown to them. A second supercomputer exists and it has been activated after the destruction of the Regent. It has the technology and the resources of the First Imperium at its disposal and it has only one mission. To enact total vengeance and destruction against the creatures that destroyed the original Regent super computer and it has the power to accomplish that goal. This is a great premise for the next book in the series and I have read all of the books of this series so far. This book introduces a new cast of characters and as a result a lot of new character development has to take place. In addition a lot of time in the first part of the book is spent on the politics between the 4 different classes of people that live on Earth 2. This is a good story line and it is developed well but my interest are not in politics but in more classic Sci-Fi and the continuation of the storyline of this saga that I have been reading for a long time.
